

Women's Resource Fair article – Lorraine George

They came on buses, in cars, and on foot. It rained almost the whole day, but they came. Women. Women from the homeless shelters, the abused women's shelters, and other social service agencies. Some with their children in tow. And they sat before us releasing their burdens into the heart of Reiki-experiencing fifteen minutes of peace and acceptance from the love we hold in our hands.

The Reiki booth was hidden way in the back. But they came. And they stood in line and waited to have their turn. They wanted to look like the person in the chair in front of them. "Touch me." "Help me feel good." Their eyes conveyed. We couldn't stop. The need was so great, the reward so powerful.

Gabriella, Alice, Maria, her friend Liz, and I represented the San Diego Reiki Corps. Please consider signing on for next year when it comes up again, as the need is ever present for those served by the Resource Fair.
